DETAILED ACTION

Status of Claims

1. This action is in response to the application filed on 23 September 2003.
2. Claims 1-20 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

5. Claims 1-2, 5-7, 10-11, and 14-18 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jain et al., US2003/0195793, henceforth known as Jain.

6. Examiner's note: Examiner has pointed out particular references contained in the prior art of record in the body of this action for the convenience of the Applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply. Applicant, in preparing the response, should consider fully the entire reference as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the content of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the Examiner.

Claims 1-2, 10-11, and 14-18:

- Identifying and informing the potential customer of a new product.
- Presenting to potential consumer a visual of a first product.
- Presenting to potential consumer a visual of a similar product.
- Modifying visual of first product to appear like the similar product.

Jain in at least paragraph [0023 and 0092] discloses the deployment of a computerized marketing research activity tool that adaptively adjusts the number and selection of participants and dynamically adjusts the marketing research activity in a manner that will maximize the value of the information and minimize the cost of the information collected from the participants. Jain does not specifically disclose presenting visual images of a product per se. However, Jain in at least paragraph [0173] discloses the use of product comparisons to personalize the information presented to potential consumers and in Table 2 discloses using an advertisement of a similar product or the new product to determine a potential consumer's inclination to buy the product. Therefore, it would be obvious, at the time of invention, to one of ordinary skill in the art, to determine that the presentation of an advertisement of the similar product or the new product is equivalent to Applicant's presentation of a visual.

Claims 5-7:

- Identifying a panel of people;
- Presenting to a panelist a visual of a first known tangible product.
- Presenting a visual of a second product.
- Presenting an intermediate product with characteristics of first and second product.
- Surveying a panelist on impressions of the products and their associated features.

Jain in at least paragraph [0001] discloses an invention that automates the design of Marketing Research including one or more research approaches, e.g., marketing experiments, surveys, interviews, focus group discussions and the like. Jain in at least paragraph [0149 and 0173] discloses personalizing the Research Approach Design Tool by modifying the research design, i.e., the experiment, the survey questionnaire to suit an individual customer to maximize the value of the information obtained from a customer. Jain does not specifically disclose presenting visual images of a product per se. However, Jain in at least paragraph [0173] further discloses the use of product comparisons to personalize the information presented to potential consumers and in Table 2 discloses using an advertisement of a similar product or the new product to determine a potential consumer's inclination to buy the product. Therefore, it would be obvious, at the time of invention, to one of ordinary skill in the art, to determine that the selection of a panel of people is similar to setting up a focus group and the presentation of an advertisement of a similar product or the new product is equivalent to Applicant's presentation of a visual.

7. Claims 3-4, 8-9, 12-13, and 19-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jain as applied to claims 1-2, 10-11, and 17-18 above, and further in view of Zawilinski, US 5,676,138..

Claims 3-4, 8-9, 12-13, and 19-20:

- Visual presentation is still images.
- Visual presentation is moving images.

Zawilinski in at least Column 3, lines 28-62 discloses a computerized multimedia system for measuring, analyzing, storing, and displaying emotional responses elicited by humans when presented a stimulus such as a television commercial. Zawilinski in at least Column 5, lines 63-67 further discloses that the interactive multimedia computer is capable of at least visually displaying one stimulus presented at any given time interval. Zawilinski does not specifically disclose still images per se, however in at least Fig. 2 and Column 6, lines 36-42 discloses a representative screen with the stimulus. Therefore, it would be obvious, at the time of the invention, to one of ordinary skill to be motivated to combine Jain's marketing research activity with Zawilinski's multimedia stimuli and response analyzer to obtain a better indicator of a customer's response to various products or their features.

Art Unit: 3627
